Offering or giving any favor or thing of value for the purpose of influencing improperly a grade or other evaluation of a student in an academic program.

Bribery

Exchanging money or other things for academic credit will be considered bribery. Even if made in jest or on social media, a bribe made concerning academic work will not be taken lightly and will be considered a violation of the Honor Code.

Conduct intended to interfere with an instructor’s ability to evaluate accurately a student’s competency or performance in an academic program.

Interference

If you are purposefully interfering with an instructor’s ability to evaluate your work or another student’s work, then you have likely violated this policy. For example, if you claim credit for group work by putting your name on a group presentation when you have not contributed to that group assignment, you likely have violated this rule.
